* Michael Wright, a student at St. Peter's H.S. for Boys, is recovering from injuries sustained during an accident. All proceeds will aid in his recovery. *

St. Peter's Student, Michael Wright had suffered a serious injury ... he broke two vertebrae ... while taking part in the 12th annual Polar Plunge on that early December day and had recently been discharged from the Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation (N.J.) after a lengthy stay.

"A parent's worst nightmare that I want to forget," was the way Melissa put it while the fundraiser took place. "But I have a lot to be thankful for ... the prayers, the love, the visits, the way people have reached out to us during this trying time.

"It's all been positive," she added. "And everything has helped me and my family get through this ordeal as Michael continues to recover from his injury."

And there was, yet, another positive sign for the 17-year-old on Saturday. The St. Peter's student planned to attend the mass, but miss the fundraiser, which took place at the conclusion of the service.

But Michael, who is a member of the Eagles' football and swimming teams, was feeling pretty good at the conclusion of mass. And despite wearing a neck brace and needing a cane, he went down a staircase under his own power to pay a visit to Farrell Hall for the fundraiser that was attended by school officials, teachers, fellow students, alumni and many others.
